Jonathan,

I respect the rage you feel for the secrets that Echavarria kept. I suspect that all that we seek would be trivial child's play if Ramon had not deliberately concealed the truth from us. Nor do I fault you for not putting great faith in Samson. Not any more.

And so I understand that you may have cause to distrust. But I can tell you in no uncertain terms that Gol-Goroth was but another of Ramon's lies. The mouths are not of the Fisher's making. This expedition you are planning is ill-conceived at best and, more likely, utter folly. You would have more success sending Dominguez here to Ko Kruk Island (or coming yourself) and studying the reports I have gathered from explanations all across the globe over these past ten years.
