

CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE - NEWSPAPER ARTICLES

Collected by Justin Alexander

<http://www.thealexandrian.net>

This props template is based on Chicago Tribune articles from 1900-1940. It includes:

- Several raw images of actual pages from the Chicago Tribune to provide historical context.
- The fonts necessary to match the Tribune's style.
- This Word document, giving examples of several different article formats.
- A PDF file to show what this Word document should look like (to make sure the fonts are correctly installed on your machine).

Note that a number of other papers used very similar designs, including the New-York Tribune and The Waco News-Tribune. So you can easily use these templates for articles from any number of sources (including fictional ones).

ADVANCED TIPS

- Purchase actual newsprint to print on. This will generally work best with an inkjet printer. Some printers may have difficulty feeding the thin newsprint, but I've found success by feeding the newsprint one sheet at a time.
- Trim the paper down to the dimensions of the article.
- If it's an article which someone in the game setting has been preserving (found among their papers, for example), you might consider pasting the article onto white paper or cardstock. (An example of this is given among the original samples.)
- For added verisimilitude, you can also print content on the opposite side of the paper. Advertisements are generally the easiest way of doing this, and a selection of such ads has been included in the template package.

REVIEWS G.O.P. PROSPERITY AS BOSTON CHEERS

Fights to Hold Wet Massachusetts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15—[Special]—Herbert Hoover was welcomed to Massachusetts today with many cheers, but he faced an audience of 9,000 in the Boston arena tonight with a grave countenance and the feeling that the political situation in the state is crucial for his party.

He presented as the economic necessities of the nation in the continuance of the protective tariff and the increase in trade and commerce as the argument to hold the old commonwealth to its traditional Republican moorings.

May Cost G. O. P. State.

For prohibition seems to be the rock upon which the Republicans are in some danger of wreckage here. It has wrought this situation—that the state which gave Coolidge half a million majority, a state normally Republican, is today doubtful.

Mr. Hoover sought to bring the economic picture closer to the women. He showed them the effect on the family budget, bringing the tariff into the average home.

SAYS DEMOCRACY
AND AL ARE HOPE
OF NEGRO RACE

Hope for the political advancement of the colored race lies in the Democratic party, 2,500 Negroes gathered at Wendell Phillips High school last night were told by Ferdinand Q. Morton, colored civil service commissioner of New York City.

"Don't keep on voting for the Republican party," said Morton. "It was our party in emancipation days, but conditions have changed and it is better for us to vote independently now. Gov. Smith is our friend and I urge votes for him."

Bishop R.C. Ranson of the African M.E. church, declared that all the fanatics are on the Republican side and added that a vote for Smith is a blow to intolerance and bigotry.
